

PACER - the Post Adoption Center for Education and Research - has very active support groups in Sacramento and Cameron Park, California. If you are an adult member of the adoption triad (adoptee, adoptive parent or birthparent) in the Sacramento or Cameron Park areas, you are invited and encouraged to attend monthly support group meetings. After just one meeting, you'll feel like family.

PACER meetings are support meetings, not search meetings, however, many members have completed their own searches and are more than happy to assist others that have made a decision to search. (To search or not to search is a personal decision and not necessary to be involved in PACER). There is plenty of time before and after the meetings for search related discussion.

PACER support groups offer a safe, confidential environment where individuals within the adoption triad (adoptee, adoptive parents and birth parents) can come together to share with, and to learn from each other.
